FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Stunning New Book “The Return of Planet-X” Reveals how this Brown Dwarf Star’s ‘Close-Pass’ to Earth in 2009 and again in 2012 could Terrorize our Planet

HORN LAKE, MS, September 5, 2007 — Futureworld Publishing International announces the publication of Jaysen Q. Rand, Ph.D.’s alarming and eye-opening new book The Return of Planet X and Its Effects on Mother Earth: A Natural Disaster Survivor’s Manual.

($29.95, paperback version, 342 pages, ISBN 978-0-9779209-1-4).

($14.95 ebook version, 342 pages, ISBN 978-0-9779209-2-5)

Declaring that the 3,600-year orbit of Planet-X soon will make its first “close-pass” to Earth through the solar system—possibly as early as 2009—Rand reveals how and why that event could spur unspeakable planetary changes and untold horrors for our world.

”This [coming] calamity is relatively simple to understand, at least in concept,” Rand writes. “Our hypothesis involves a large ‘celestial object’ (a spent brown dwarf star), periodically close-passing our world in space in 2009 again in 2012 and, as it does, this object’s massive electromagnetic gravitational force causes enormous physical changes to Earth’s topography . . . and occasionally, (in a worst case scenario)— possibly altering Earth’s physical axis of rotation, with the end result triggering a potentially catastrophic trans-global 180-degree pole shift.”

Rand explains that Planet-X will not actually hit Earth, but that our planet, nonetheless, could be severely damaged by the dwarf star’s close proximity. Planet-X’s initial pass through our solar system likely will occur in 2009, with a second pass-through in 2012.

“It could alter how the world mechanically rotates on its polar axis in space,” says Rand. This, in turn, could kindle “massive planetary disasters” similar to Hurricane Katrina—or much worse. Earth’s chaotic weather patterns are now causing the worst spat of globally uncontrollable natural disasters in the last 200 years with no end in sight for the planet.

In clear, engrossing chapters, Rand explains that the Planet-X phenomenon has riveted the attention of humankind for millennia. He reveals how this planet (actually a brown dwarf star) was dubbed “Wormwood” in The Holy Bible (Revelation: Chapter 8, Verse 11) and how the brown dwarf star’s likely previous “close-pass” of Earth cosmically coincided with the Hebrew exodus from Egypt in 1447 B.C.E. under the biblical leadership of Moses.

He also explains how ‘Wormwood’ is depicted in ancient Sumerian pictographs, revered Bible prophecies, and many lost legends of time from every known society of mankind.

Ultimately, Rand says, he wants to not only explain about Planet-X and its potentially disastrous effects on us in 2009 . . . but also to help prepare us for the dire consequences.

“In chapter ten,” he says, “we’ll explore the many specific skills and items you should consider acquiring as preparation for protecting yourself and your family against catastrophic events. Once this disaster occurs, most, if not all, the modern conveniences we take for granted could be stripped away instantly . . . New Orleans [during and following Katrina] proved it’s just you—and you alone—against old Mother Nature and your fellow man!” Remember to say your prayers...

“It’s 2007 in the 21st century. We’re now witnessing the dramatic effects of our increased global warming, earthquakes, intense tropical storms, extended forest fire seasons, much warmer winters and summers, plus drastic changes in all our planet’s regular weather systems. Are we now experiencing what could be the forthcoming countdown to the predicted pole shift event [caused by Planet-X] in 2012?”
